About the Conference

One of the major goals of family violence intervention programs is assisting perpetrators in accepting full responsibility and accountability for their abusive actions. Most perpetrators' explanations of abuse promote an avoidance of responsibility. In order to accept responsibility, the perpetrator must fully acknowledge the existence and significance of the abuse and understand the potential impact of his abusive actions upon the victim and others. He must accept and become accountable for his actions and bear the full onus for ceasing his abuse and changing his behavior.

This workshop will help Family Violence Intervention Facilitators in providing psychoeducational experiences that assist perpetrators in developing accountability for their behaviors and taking responsibility for ceasing and changing their abusive behaviors.

Who Should Attend:

Those who are interested in becoming a Family Violence Facilitator or those who are seeking Family Violence Facilitator recertification.

This training was approved by the Georgia Commission on Family Violence for 6 Training hours for FVIP facilitators. The views, findings, conclusions, and recommendations expressed in this training are those of the trainer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Georgia Commission on Family Violence.

Learning Objectives

1. Describe some of the myths that prevent accountability among perpetrators.
2. Defining accountability and responsibility.
3. Describe batterers belief system and behaviors that inhibit them from accepting accountability.
4. Explain patterns of thinking and behavior of non-accountable perpetrators.
5. Examine the role of emotional dysregulation as a casual factor for intimate partner violence.
6. Helping perpetrators move from causal explanation to accountability explanations for their behaviors.
7. Strategies for accountability building with perpetrators.
