Columbus, GA 31906

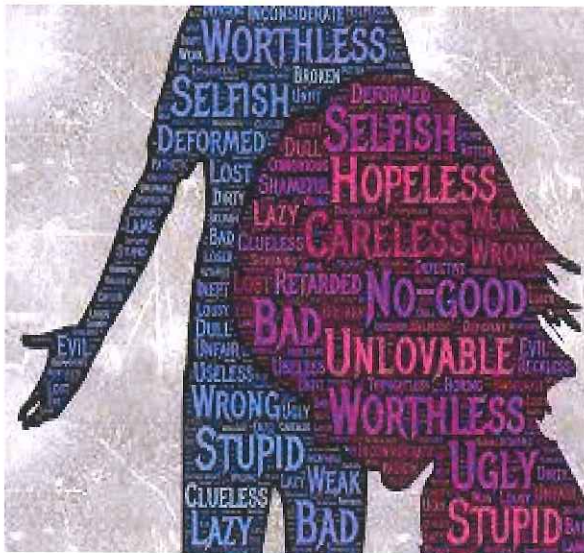

Program Description:

Childhood traumas can greatly impact adulthood. Whether or not there is prevention or intervention can determine the well-being of the adult. This program aims to help identify the impact on the child, the adult, and the community.

Program Objectives:

At the completion of this session participants will be able to:

- Recall the results of the adverse childhood experiences studies that demonstrate links between childhood trauma and adult health outcomes
- Understand how toxic stress affects brain development throughout childhood and adolescence
- Recall factors that increase resilience in children who experience trauma
- Understand the effects of sexual assault on the individual as well as the community
- Identify ways the community can better respond to sexual assault and other forms of abuse

Jordan Greenbaum, MD

Dr. Greenbaum is a child abuse physician at the Stephanie V. Blank Center for Safe and Healthy Children at Children's Healthcare of Atlanta. She is the medical director of the SVB Center's Institute on Healthcare and Human Trafficking. She is also the medical director of the Global Child Health and Wellbeing Initiative for the International Centre for Missing and Exploited Children. She served on the board of the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children, as secretary and as president. She co-chairs the Human Trafficking committee for the Helper Society, and the Education/Training committee for HEAL Trafficking, an organization of medical professionals working on human trafficking issues.

Kyle Avery Bair

Kyle currently serves as the Executive Director of the Sexual Assault Support Center, formerly known as Columbus Rape Crisis. Kyle has been the Director for the last 18 years, but she began her service as a volunteer victim advocate for the Center in 1990. Kyle is a former Special Criminal Investigator for the Office of the District Attorney, where she began her career as a victim advocate for the District Attorney's Victim-Witness Program.

The SASC currently provides services and prevention education and training to our local communities including the Chattahoochee Judicial Circuit and surrounding counties.
